Early Woodworking in Pittsfield

Woodworking in one form or another was once a part of everyday life for people pre-industrialization. We will explore the crafts' origins from the humble beginnings of John Cram's sawmill to the box and shingle mills of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, and how this industry was indispensable to the early growth of Pittsfield. Short biographies will include: Jacob Jones, clockmaker; Abraham French, cabinetmaker; William Hartwell, millwright and lumberman; and others. After the presentation there will be a brief demonstration with some of the hand tools and techniques these craftsmen would have used in their work. Discussion regarding the modern role of the woodworking craft and its continued relevance is invited.

New England Barn Talk

John Porter, co-author of Preserving Old Barns, will present "The History of Agriculture as Told by Barns." The evolution of barn architecture tells the story of New Hampshire agriculture. Barns changed from the early English style, to Yankee style, to gambrel and then pole barns to accommodate the changing agriculture. This presentation will be a chronological walk through time, with photo illustrations of barns around the state that are examples of these eras of agricultural history. John Porter and Francis Gilman, co-authors of Preserving Old Barns, have spent their careers with farmers around New England helping them update and retrofit barns and have applied this knowledge to the renovation of old barns.
